Innovation, governance and territorial design in Europe

Building the Europe of tomorrow with innovative territories

Do questions about Europe and its construction fascinate you? Do you want to participate in the overhaul of the European project as a professional, leader of a non-governmental organisation, local councilor, or citizen?

Do you think that citizenship and local democracy is a daily process at the municipal, inter-municipal and regional levels?

Are you convinced that global transformation (digital revolution, climate and demographic changes, international trade...) require innovative responses?

If yes to the above, the European College of Local Democracy and Territorial Innovation in Cluny is for you.

After 17 years of experience running European Summer Universities, the European College of Cluny has developed an offer of eight high quality workshops applied to the fields of local democracy and territorial innovation. The course is taught in English and French:

- 25 to 29 March 2019: Europeans and the major challenges of the 21st century and the need for innovation (Sciences Po Paris)
- 1 to 5 April 2019: Territorial public management (27ème Région)
- 15 to 19 April 2019: Territorial Intelligence and good governance of common assets (Université de Bourgogne – Franche Comté)
- 6 to 10 May 2019: Circular and digital economy (Campus Arts et Métiers Cluny)
- 20 to 24 May 2019: Sustainable mobility (Laboratoire THÉMA)
- 10 to 14 June 2019: Smart specialisation of territories (European Commission, Joint Research Centre in Seville)
- 24 to 28 June 2019: The European Union and its local democracies (Assembly of European Regions)
- 8 to 12 July 2019: Citizenship, culture and European heritage (Centre de Conférences Internationales de Cluny – European College)

Profiles:

- Elected representatives and officials from local and regional authorities, States or the European Union, professionals working in contact with local and regional authorities or wishing to move towards this type of career, social economy actors and non-governmental organisations, executives from the private sector, in particular companies likely to interact with local authorities wishing to acquire or develop their skills in innovative management of territories from a European perspective.

- Be fluent in French or English (C1 level), and able to understand the other language (B1 level).

Associated with the Post Master students for one or two modules, your experience as committed actors in your territory will be highly beneficial for stimulating debates with the Post Master students.
